
Stealing the blinds

Posted by Whalewager - 2007/10/24 21:44

Can it be done successfully in low limit, or does it really depend on positioning and who is next to you (aka spotting the weaker players)??

=====

Re:Stealing the blinds

Posted by simice - 2007/10/25 06:50

I find that most low limit games have a high number of players seeing the flop, making stealing the blind very hard.

On the small number of times I get the chance to steal, I tend to target only tight players as they will generally be more disciplined and more likely to fold. I find it is not worth trying to steal against loose players as they will call too often.

=====

Re:Stealing the blinds

Posted by shay - 2007/10/30 23:22

I don't understand. What is "stealing the blind"? The blind is what one puts up before seeing the first three cards, right? (I can't remember what those first three cards are called. lol.)

=====

Re:Stealing the blinds

Posted by Whalewager - 2007/10/31 16:00

The first three cards are called "the flop", the 4th card is the turn and the final of course, is the river

Good advice Simice.

=====

Re:Stealing the blinds

Posted by simice - 2007/11/01 07:00

shay wrote:

I don't understand. What is "stealing the blind"?

Stealing the blind: Raising pre-flop before anyone else has called/raised (probably from late position) with a weak hand in order to make the blinds fold.

=====